CURRENCONTEXT

The current strategic plantaunching SM's Second Century: Shaping Leaders for a Changing Wastd, launched in 2016 and will conclude in 2025. It includes six goals, 35 objectives, and 133 metrics. The goals of the plan are:

To enhance the academic quality and stature of the University

To improve teaching and learning

To strengthen scholarly research, creative achievement, and opportunities for innovation

To sustain student development and a supportive campus experience

To broaden global perspectives

To increase revenue generation and promote responsible stewardship of resources

Commendable progress has been made across all six goals, and the next president will be tasked with collaborating with stakeholders to create the next strategic plan and usher in the next era of growth and excellence.

For over 100 years, SMU has enriched its students and the broader community through outstanding education, groundbreaking research and active involvement. Through their gifts, more than 61,000 supporters are powering new paths for education, research and nounity engagement. They will leave a legacy that stretches far beyond SMU's campus. Thanks to tens of thousands of donors, the campaign, which is slated to go through 2028, has commitments well beyond $1.3 billion.

In looking toward the future, the president will balance the need to respond to market realities, build innovative programming, and address enrollment trends and a challenging higher education landscape to create a purposeful plan for resource allocation. The president will lead a continuing assessment of existing programs and encourage the consideration of new programs, with a focus on graduate education with potential for additional revenue generation.

The president will be supported in this work by the President's Executive Council, which includes the following direct reports: provost and senior vice president for Academic Affairs; senior vice president for Development and External Affairs; senior vice president for Student Affairs; senior vice president for Business and Finance and chief financial officer; vice president for Executive Affairs; vice president for Legal Affairs, general counsel, and secretary to the Board of Trustees; chief investment affid director of Athletics. Other direct reports include the chief diversity officer and senior advisor to the president for cultural intelligence, chief information officer, assistant vice president for Access and Equity, and the director of InternaAuditing and Consulting Services.

Building upon the strong foundation that already exists, the president will address the following challenges and strive to use them as opportunities to propel the University to even greater eminence:

KEY OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES FOR THE PRESIDENT

academic excellence at its core, that draws from SMU's remarkable history and that accurately defines its future.

As the current strategic plan comes to a close, the president must help SMU envision an even stronger regional, national and global identity. To bring this vision to life, the president will lead an inclusive, community-engaged visioning and strategic phing process that outlines the University's key strategic imperatives. SMU is prepared for an ambitious vision and strategic plan rooted in the values that have informed the University's trajectory to date, that guides the community forward and galvanizes stakeholders across the University and beyond to action. This includes maintaining an environment of an extension of the classroom characterized by engaged learning projects and community partnerships. By strategically strengthening and expanding fruitful relationships, and leveraging SMU's 65,000 alumni in the Dallas area, the president has the opportunio bolster SMU's relationships and engagement in Dallas while also contributing meaningfully to developing sustainable solutions to the city's most pressing economic and social challenges.

As one of the nation's fastesprowing regions, Dallas is a launchpad for global impact. The president must capitalize on the metroplex's monumental rise and ensure SMU remains at the center of its growth. In doing so, the president will be an involved dea and partner with its neighbors on major issues of regional significance. As the premier University in the center of the fagtesting metro area in the country, SMU must capitalize on this opportune moment in the region's history.

Successfully conclude SMU's momentous comprehensive campaign to power new paths for education, research and community

The president will oversee the final three years of the campaign, engaging key constituents and developing relationships with the donor base to ensure continued momentum during and after the presidential transition. They will work to introduce themselves $MU's 136,000 alumni, cultivate supporters in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and promote a compelling vision for SMU's future to its many generous benefactors. The president will also build connections between the campus and the external community, fostering collaborations that benefit SMU's students, faculty, alumni and staff.
